

RADM Luis Vega, USA, Ret.

Senior Consultant, Capture and Strategy

Luis.Vega@redwoodglobalinc.com

Professional Experience

Admiral Vega has built and maintains critical relationships with the United States and Foreign Government heads of state, vendor and customer relationships including US Military, Civil, and Intelligence Community Customers, as well as International and Commercial Customers. With an MBA in International Business and an MPM from Regis University, Admiral Vega has successfully obtained and managed billions of dollars' worth of government and corporate total solution security, training and city development contracts, domestically and abroad. Admiral Vega sits on numerous Strategic Government and Corporate Boards that lead the industry in National Security, Counter – Narcotics and Drug Interdiction, Counter Terrorism and Security Solutions involving Land, Sea and Air classified program solutions.

In addition to his role with Redwood Global, Admiral Vega is also the Executive Vice President and Special Advisor to Ploutus International Investments, Global Sandi Group Security, Special Operations Consulting and the Confluence Group, all private Operations and Maintenance, Technical, Intelligence and Security companies specializing in international force protection and low-profile, high-end security operations in high-threat environments, Force Multiplier Asset Protection, Third World Country Development and more. Admiral Vega has provided Red Cell Operations for Nuclear Sites, site risk assessments and mitigation for Border Security, Oil Fields, LNG/LPG Sites and Federal buildings and sites that include the GAO, FDA, DoS, DoE and DoI, to name a few. In addition, he has been an invaluable asset to the United Nations for Nation Building and all the surrounded Security, Finance, Transportation, Economic, Education, and Communications Development. As an operations director and executive, he has developed all of the procedures pertaining to risk/threat and vulnerability assessments.

Admiral Vega has served as the Senior Inspector for South Florida's Criminal Justice Standards and Training's Internal Affairs Division. Currently, he is a consultant for the U.S. Government on the Counter-Narcotics and Drug Interdiction Task Force, and has served as an agent for Legacy U.S. Customs Service, under the High-Intensity Drug Trafficking Area Program. Admiral Vega has active duty military and Special Operation's experience, and has served overseas as a Special Team and Program leader and operator in Iraq, Afghanistan, Lebanon, Panama, Colombia, Brazil, and Haiti; performing various security assessments for multi-national corporations and sovereign governments in the regions. He is currently on a U.S. Congressional Task Force and Border Security Working Group and leads a Congressional Counter Terrorism Task Force.

Admiral Vega has spoken on many occasions in US Congress Sub-Committee and industry seminars on security and counter terrorism. He sits on several boards serving Intelligence across the spectrum on National Security for the United States and its Allies. Currently Chairman of the Special Advisory Board for the United Nation's HALT Ebola Board; Board member of the Fair Energy Foundation; Senior Board member for Stem Cell R&D; board member to TAPS (Tragedy Assistance Program for Survivors) and finally board member for Cancer research all of which are veteran-related NGO related. Admiral Vega is also a retired U.S N.R. Rear Admiral with his last duty being Intelligence in the Washington D.C. area.